INTRODUCTION

To my Friends and Fellow Members of the Southeastern Chapter:

Well, 2009 is over and we are moving into the third quarter of 2010. While I for one am glad to see last year go away, I must say that even though this year is better, it is still not what I had hoped for. It certainly is not where our government officials said we would be at this time. In fact, in my opinion, the recession or whatever you want to call it is not yet over. We still have challenges to overcome, as individuals, as a country and as EASA members.

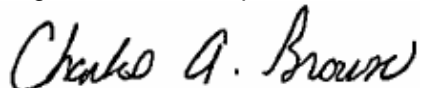

The changes that are taking place in our industry are some of the most dramatic in recent history. With EISA (Energy Independence and Security Act) taking effect in December and the possible EPA legislation which applies to burn out ovens, the challenges to EASA shops are considerable. Not to even mention the largest tax hikes in our country's history, which will take place this coming January. These tax hikes will hit us hard both individually and as small businesses.

It is times like these when networking with other people and other shops can be most important to us all. Of course, networking is just one of the many advantages that your EASA Chapter can offer you. Your Chapter is made up of people just like you from your area of the country. These people feel the same pain and rejoice in the same successes as you do. Who else is better equipped to help you meet these challenges we face head on?

I believe it is vital for you as a member of EASA and the Southeastern Chapter to be involved in what goes on in your association. In my opinion, the Southeastern Chapter is the best in the EASA organization, and I am proud that we in the Southeastern do not mind standing up for what we think is right. The more you become involved on a local level, the more access you will have at a national and international level. My company has been a member of EASA since 1946, but it is only in the last five years that I have personally become heavily involved. Let me tell you that what I have learned and applied to my company during this time is invaluable.

We are no different than any other organization. Our strength is in our numbers. The more member participation we have the more clout we have and thus, the more we can get done. In this technological era we must pool our resources in order to advance and/or keep up with what is expected by the people we serve. EASA is a great organization with many avenues to help you as you strive to be the best you can be. I encourage you to strengthen your chances by strengthening your involvement in the Southeastern Chapter and EASA as a whole.

Together we can inspire others to make our Chapter stronger than ever.
